Curtis Jett Arrested by Posse.

SUBMITTED PEACEFULLY

Arriving at 3 A. M. Officers Found Him in Bed.

HE HAD DRIVEN HIS STEP-FATHER FROM HOME SATURDAY NIGHT.

Visited in Jail By a Herald Reporter, He Declined To Discuss the Marcum Killing—Threats Made Against His Uncle.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
WINCHESTER, Ky., May 10.—(Special.)—Curtis Jett, charged with the murder of James B. Marcum, was captured this morning shortly after three o'clock at his mother's home in Madison county, near the Kentucky river, by Sheriff Woodson McCord, Deputy Sheriff J. T. Stokely, of this county, and a posse of six men, and now occupies a cell in the Clark county jail.

Jett made no attempt to resist arrest, although he had a big gun under his pillow and inside the house had every advantage of the officers. Sheriff McCord and Deputy Sheriff Stokely approached the house, leaving the rest of the party stationed in places of advantage in the yard. After a little delay they secured admission to the house and found Jett in bed. He was in bed and when informed of the mission of the officers quietly submitted.

No Show of Arms.

Sheriff McCord and Deputy Stokely went about the house very quietly and without any display. They are known as fearless and able officers and have never failed to get the man they went after. In all their career they have never used their guns in arresting a man, believing that the more quiet methods are the better.

The Sheriff and his posse, with Jett, returned to Winchester about half past five o'clock and Jett was placed in the county jail, where your correspondent saw him this afternoon. Jett was fairly communicative when questioned in regard to all matters except the question most interesting—the assassination of J. B. Marcum. When the assassination was mentioned he grew sullen and parried every question.

One question that is agitating the minds of Winchester citizens is, now that Jett is in custody, what will be done with him. They believe that if he is taken to the Jackson jail he will escape and it is said that an effort may be made to keep him in Winchester for some time at least.

The warrant for Jett's arrest was issued by Police Judge Pendleton upon an affidavit sworn to by Sam Jett, charging him with the murder of James B. Marcum. The warrant was issued when it was learned that Tom Cockrell could not reach Winchester last night with the warrant sworn out at Lexington. The new warrant was placed in the hands of Sheriff McCord and he immediately prepared to serve it. Jett had come down from Jackson to Winchester Saturday afternoon and had gone to his mother's home in the upper end of Madison county about six o'clock. To Sheriff McCord he said that his mother had been ill with rheumatism and had asked him to pay her a visit.

The Trip to Jackson's Ferry.

Sheriff McCord, together with Deputy Stokely, soon secured a posse, a number of young men volunteering to go with them. In the party were Messrs. W. A. Adams, C. D. Hoskins, Charles Derrickson, June Hunter, H. W. Scrivener and H. B. Scrivener. Mr. Adams was in his youth a neighbor of Jett and went as a pilot.

Jett's father, Hiram Jett, a well-to-do citizen of Winchester, died in September, 1893, and his mother afterwards married a man by the name of Hagins. They live in Madison county, about two miles from Jackson's Ferry and about twelve miles from Winchester.

Sheriff McCord and his posse left Winchester in four buggies shortly after midnight and drove to Jackson's Ferry, ten miles distant. All were well supplied with pistols, for they did not know what kind of a reception they would receive. They arrived at Jackson's Ferry about 2:30 a. m. and left their horses and buggies, the road to Mrs. Hagins' home being far out of the way and very inconveniently reached. They were rowed across the Kentucky river in boats and then took up their two-mile tramp to Mrs. Hagins' home. The country in the upper end of Madison county along the Kentucky river cliffs is very rough. Great hills and cliffs shoot up to give way soon to deep ravines and low, damp valleys. Through this country the posse was compelled to walk. They waded through the meadows knee deep with wet grass and climbed steep hills until they reached the road leading to the Hagins' home.

Arrival At the Home.

It was three o'clock when the party reached the house. Mr. Adams had proved a good pilot and had brought them to their destination in fast time. Sheriff McCord decided to take Deputy Stokely and go to the house. The other members of the party were told to secure places of advantage around the yard, so that if Jett tried to escape they might intercept him. The members of the posse tell a number of amusing stories of what happened while they were taking their stations. Positions behind the trees were secured, and from behind these the members of the posse rested their guns on some limb. One member of the posse climbed an apple tree, from which he had a full view of what was taking place inside the house.

Mrs. Hagins answered knock. Sheriff McCord and Deputy Stokely approached the house and knocked at the front door. Mrs. Hagins answered the knock and was asked by Deputy Stokely if her husband was at home. She said that he was not. He then asked if Curt Jett was there. For a moment she hesitated and then admitted that he was. She was told that they wanted to see him and she re-entered the house, and after a short delay returned. Then it was that the officers told her who they were. She directed them to go to the rear of the house, saying that she would let them in by the rear door.

When the officers first entered the yard they saw a light burning in a rear room. When they reached the rear of the house there was no light in the room. This made the officers somewhat suspicious and they hesitated on the door step. Finally the light reappeared and the door was opened. An unknown man was standing in the shadow and the officers eyed him closely.

When the officers entered the room they found Jett in bed. He had only his night clothes on and was leaning on his elbow. Underneath his pillow the officers saw the handle of his big pistol.

A Pleasant Greeting.

"Hello Curt," said Sheriff McCord, walking to his bed and taking his hand. "I have a warrant for your arrest."

Jett did not move and displayed no surprise or emotion. "All right, Woods," he said; "I will submit to you; you won't have any trouble with me. All I want is to be treated right and protected."

Sheriff McCord assured him that he would be perfectly safe in his hands, and then read the warrant to him, in which he is charged with the murder of James B. Marcum. Jett never said a word, but his mother said "I don't believe Curt did it."

Gave Gun To Mother.

Curt then dressed and prepared to go with the officers. He took his gun from under his pillow and gave it to his mother, requesting her to keep it safe for him. Deputy Stokely, out of curiosity, asked to see the gun that is alleged to have played so important a part in the late history of Breathitt county. Jett shook his head and laughingly said: "Oh, you don't want to see it."

All the time the officers were in the room and while Jett was dressing they say they were expecting to be fired on at any moment. The unknown man who had opened the door for them had come into the room and stood so as to flank them. The door to a room opening into Jett's room was slightly ajar and seemed to be held by some person who was peering through the two-inch crack. This made the officers feel very uncomfortable, but no effort to interfere with them was made.

Ran Step-Father From Home.

It is charged that Jett was drinking when he was in Winchester Saturday afternoon and when he reached his mother's home he had imbibed from the jug which he carried. There he had some difficulty with his step-father, Mr. Hagins, and the latter claims, ran him away from home at the point of his revolver. Mr. Hagins went to Richmond, where he swore out a warrant for Jett's arrest on the charge of assault with a pistol.

By the time the officers arrived Jett had slept off the effects of the whisky and desired more. His mother protested, begging him not to begin drinking again. He insisted, however, and she secured a bottle, which he filled from the jug he had. He drank of the whisky on his way to town.

The officers believe that a number of things contributed to the easy capture of Jett. They think he was surprised, although he did not show it. They also think that their manner of approaching him had a great deal to do with the capture. If they had gone in with their guns drawn they believe that Jett would have immediately shown fight. Jett had every advantage, and it is almost certain that if a fight had been precipitated some of the participants would have been killed or injured. The officers also believe that at first Jett suspected that they were officers from Richmond to arrest him for driving his step-father from home.

Silent As To Tragedy.

On the way to Winchester, Sheriff McCord tried every means in his power to get Jett to talk about Marcum's assassination, but was unsuccessful. He was fairly communicative about things that did not concern the assassination of Marcum, but when that crime was mentioned he became reticent.

He was very bitter in his talk against Sam Jett, his uncle, and referred to him sarcastically as "his own uncle in blood," putting emphasis on "blood." He said that when he got out of jail he would give Sam Jett a sound beating; that he did not want to kill him, but would club him. Sheriff McCord asked him about his ability as a marksman.

"Oh, I can kill a squirrel," replied Jett.

"With a pistol?"

"No," replied Jett, with a grim smile, "with a shotgun."

In appearance, Jett is about five feet eight inches tall, weighs about 155 pounds and is stockily built. His features are sharp and seem to indicate shrewdness. His head is covered with a heavy suit of brownish hair. His eyes are small, almond shaped and piercing.

Visited In Jail.

When seen at the jail yesterday by a Herald correspondent, in company with Sheriff McCord and Deputy Stokely, he was lying on the cot in his narrow cell and said that he had just been sleeping. Jett was dressed in a dark cotton shirt, with rough corduroy trousers. His shoes were heavy. Jett says that he is twenty-eight years old, but he does not look to be more than twenty-two, and in this respect the picture of him with son immediately, but added that he was in charge of Sheriff McCord. At the mention of the name of his uncle, Sam Jett, he said that he would like to see him, adding sarcastically, "One ought to like his blood relations." He denied that he had run his step-father away from his home, and said that the report was altogether false. In response to another question, he said that he had been at "outs" with County Judge Hargis for more than six months—since the time Judge Hargis sent him to jail under a $5,000 peace bond. He said: "I broke into jail and I broke out." Jett was never rearrested after he had broken jail.

He became irritated when a number of persons crowded round his cell and said that he was no "side show." He also complained that the accommodations at the jail did not suit him.

"What Do You Care?"

"Where were you when Marcum was killed?" was the first question asked him in regard to the assassination.

Immediately his expression was changed. He grew sullen, his eyes flashed and he blurted out, "What do you care?"

Other questions bearing on the assassination were asked, and to all of them he maintained a sullen silence. He was asked if he had heard that witnesses would swear that they saw him enter the court house just before Marcum was shot and leave just after he was shot. To this, as to all similar questions, he maintained the same sullen silence. One visitor to his cell earlier in the day met with a sharp rebuff. He asked Jett what he knew in regard to the murder of Marcum, and Jett replied: "I don't know a damn thing about it and don't care a damn thing about it."

Visited By Brother.

Later in the afternoon Sheriff McCord took Dr. R. B. Ishmael to the cell and the latter dressed Jett's finger. Sheriff McCord then asked Jett if he would like to see his brother, William Jett, a merchant of Reekerville, who was in Winchester. He replied that he would and his brother was brought in. They did not shake hands. Curt Jett called his brother "Uncle Tom" and after a few words, asked for a private conversation with him. This was granted and they were closeted for some time. It is alleged that Will Jett was driven from Jackson by the Hargis faction.

Winchester people give Curt Jett a bad reputation. They say he has been wild from youth, and at one time he shot a negro youth after a trivial quarrel with him. He is regarded here as a dangerous man. He has never been arrested for the murder of any one before this time.

A Serious Boast.

Sheriff McCord this afternoon said that some time last summer shortly after the assassination of James Cockrell, he met Jett in Winchester. Jett addressed him as "The Sheriff of Clark county." Sheriff McCord replied with "Hello, Deputy Sheriff of Breathitt county."

"Ah, by God," responded Jett with an air of bravado, "Ed Callahan won't have a deputy that is not a murderer."

An effort is to be made to keep Jett in jail at Winchester or take him to Lexington. It is not known as yet whether this can be legally done, but it is said that the effort will be made. Citizens of Winchester say that if Jett is returned to Breathitt county he will escape. They are anxious for a Special Judge, Special Commonwealth's Attorney and several companies of State Guards to conduct the trial. This it is believed to be necessary if any one is to be convicted for any of the assassinations that have taken place in Breathitt county.

Demand Justice.

Your correspondent saw Mr. Sam Jett at his home here today. Quite a number of Cockrell sympathizers were at his home. Tom Cockrell came over from Lexington on the 12 o'clock C. & O. train. His brother, McKinley Cockrell, Brack Cox, a brother of Dr. Cox, who was assassinated, and William Jett were present. Mr. Jett was asked what steps he would take to have Jett indicted and tried, and replied that everything was in the hands of the officers and that he only desired that justice be done.

Wants To Be Tried In Jackson.
In response to questions, Jett said that he would like to be taken to Jack-

STATEMENTS WHICH CHANGE STATUS OF AFFAIRS IN BREATHITT.

The public statements made in Lexington and elsewhere by Mr. Bach, a leading lawyer of Jackson; the arrest of Curtis Jett, in pursuance to a warrant sworn out by Sam Jett, Tom Cockrell also having sworn out a warrant, and the publication in the Courier-Journal of a confidential statement made by Mr. Ewen to the correspondent of that paper—an interview, we fear, improvidently and prematurely published—changes radically the status of affairs in Jackson. Of course, within three minutes after Mr. Marcum was shot it was an open secret that he had been shot by Curtis Jett; and within forty-eight hours this was known to every reporter who went there and to many persons between Jackson and Louisville and to quite a number here and elsewhere, and was communicated, as has been reported, to the Governor. But it was believed that no one would have the courage to admit that he knew this, and it was feared that if it was known that any one who saw the assassination would so state, he would be killed; and so for days the condition there was of dread, of silence, of suspense. Mr. Bach is reported to have said openly that there are five persons who saw enough—whose names he gave—to convict Curtis Jett; not in confidence, as we are informed, but publicly said these persons were ready and willing to testify to what they knew. And it is presumed that on this public statement Tom Cockrell swore out the warrant and put in operation the machinery of the law; and as this made public the charge against Jett, the correspondent to whom Mr. Ewen is alleged to have made the published statement decided that he had the right to make public that statement.

Under these revelations and changed circumstances the question is not, can the truth be ascertained, but can there be held in Jackson a fair and just trial with safety to these witnesses and to other witnesses who may be called to testify? Is the life of these witnesses safe not only from this day until that trial, but afterwards? And it is also asked—now that there is an arrest for the murder of Mr. Marcum—can the assassination of James Cockrell be investigated with safety to the witnesses by whom that assassin can be convicted?

What is the exact state of affairs in that town is perhaps not fully understood or quite realized by any who have not resided there. There are some signs of a condition that must be incomprehensible to any one who has never resided there. There are two newspapers published in Jackson—they are excellent papers—well-edited and well-conducted. It is pathetic

REPORT OF THE LAKELAND ASYLUM COMMISSIONERS.

The report of the committee appointed by the Commissioners of Lakeland Asylum to investigate and report concerning the alleged brutalities charged to be frequently done by attendants of that asylum is startling in its recitals and of the utmost importance in its recommendations. There are two reports—one signed by three members of the committee and one by a minority of one. The board has not adopted either. The majority report is to be greatly regretted; it is not worthy of the gentlemen whose name is signed to it. The testimony was conclusive that the acts were frequently done on the patients by the attendants—so frequently, so openly, so shockingly, that it is simply incredible that the practice of this cruelty was not known to the persons in authority. This is the gist of the report, as it is of the indictments found by the Jefferson grand jury. The minority report is mainly an eulogium upon the superintendent and an approval of certain recommendations submitted by Governor Beckham in a former message—recommendations which we cordially endorse. But it is impossible to change the present system until the next session of the Legislature—and in the meantime will not some radical change be made in the management and control of that asylum?

PARK

WILL BE USED BY CADETS FOR ENCAMPMENT—FINAL ARRANGEMENTS MADE.

Captain Byrarde of the State College military department announces that all arrangements for the encampment at Ashland have been completed. A full agreement with the Chamber of Commerce of that city has been arrived at and the encampment will be held in Central Park, near the city. The park is an ideal place for the encampment. It is filled with large forest trees, and has electric lights, with a large open place suitable for the camp and drill grounds. The city will furnish water, lights and natural gas for fuel, and will practically defray railroad expenses.

The encampment will be conducted along the lines of a regular military outing. There will be drill every morning and dress parade in the afternoons. Strict military discipline will be maintained. The cadets will leave this city the 21st and will return on the 30th.

TICKETS

FOR McCARTY HANGING ISSUED. NO REPRIEVE EXPECTED BY OFFICIALS.

As the fifteenth of May, the date of McCarty's execution, approaches, the preparations are being quietly made. The tickets to the execution have already been printed and some of them have been issued. The arrangements are in the hands of Sheriff Wilkerson. He has decided that the scaffold will be placed in the rear yard of the jail on or near the spot where Mud Dauber expiated his terrible crime.

So far as preparations go, there is little to be done. The scaffold upon which Mud Dauber was hanged is preserved in the jail and can be set up in a short time. It is understood that only a few tickets have been printed and the execution will be viewed by a comparatively few persons.

While it is thought that McCarty still has hopes of a reprieve from the Governor, the police and county officials believe that there is slight chance that such will be the case. It seems almost assured that the day set will witness the execution of the wife-murderer.

and said there had developed a determination among the citizens to put a stop to the reign of terror that has hung over Jackson for the last two years. He was in conversation with Tom Cockrell when told of the warrant against Curtis Jett. He said: "He is the man who killed Marcum, and I will be one of five witnesses who will so testify before the proper tribunal."

Marcum was talking to Ewen and was apparently in a deep study and was twirling a pencil in his hand. Ed Callahan walked across from Hargis' store and passed by them and around the corner of the court house. He walked back to the store a few minutes later. Tom White walked out of the court house and half turned toward Marcum just before the shooting. B. J. Ewing told me that he saw Curtis Jett step toward Marcum with his pistol in both hands and shoot him in the head. William M. Combs, Dr. Kelly Kash, John E. Patrick and, I think, County Attorney W. H. Blanton saw Curtis Jett go into the side door of the court house, heard the shots and saw Jett come to the same side door, look cautiously all around and then walk down the steps and around to the front into the crowd that was gathering.

Judge Bach added that this statement, coming from him, might result in his house being burned over his head, and would make him a marked man unless, in the meantime the strong arm of the law intervened and put Jett and his accomplices and instigators of the murder where they could do no more harm.

The witnesses named by Judge Bach are all prominent citizens of Jackson, and their statements will be believed.

Mr. Charles Scott, of the L. & E., telegraphed to the agent at Jackson yesterday morning and was told that the story of the shooting of Captain Ewen was a canard.

EWEN ACCUSES JETT.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., 10.—In connection with the report that B. J. Ewen had been killed the Courier-Journal published the following: "To a staff correspondent of the Courier-Journal at Jackson, Ky., yesterday he gave all the details of the shooting of Marcum, as told below. He had never told the story before to anyone, and was in fear of death because of his knowledge."

"Capt. B. J. Ewen was Marcum's sincere friend, and he wanted Marcum's death avenged. Yet for him to tell what he knew at the time, he thought meant death to him. Therefore he tacitly assented to an interview, which Judge Hargis practically gave out for him, saying he did not see the murderer. In a secret and confidential interview he gave out the following story, which he pledged the correspondent to withhold from publication until it was safe to use. The secret interview was given after the interview given by Judge Hargis, and he began it as follows:

"I lied to you in the first interview, but it was for the best. I am willing to tell a lie about this matter, but I will never swear to a lie. I was standing beside Marcum when he was killed. His right hand was resting heavily upon my shoulder. Tom White passed by us from out of the court house and looked Marcum full in the face, and turned around in front, attracting Marcum's attention. Suddenly the shot was fired. The pressure of Marcum's arm on my shoulder half pulled me around to face the assassin, and I turned the rest of the way. I saw the murderer and recognized him. It was Curtis Jett. He held his pistol in both hands and had advanced two steps. I thought he was going to shoot me. Marcum had fallen to the floor, and I stepped out of the door to save my life. I turned the corner of the court house and then drew my pistol, half expecting the next shot to be for me. I heard the second shot, and a couple of moments later saw Jett appear at the side door facing the well, post-office and Day's store. He placed a hand on either side of the casting and peered out each side of the door. He cautiously walked down the steps and turned into the crowd at the door, which by that time was surrounding Marcum."

"I swear before God that I saw these things. Judge Blanton, the County Attorney, also saw Jett fire the second shot. Jett was standing behind the left side partition when he fired the first shot, but advanced to Marcum's head and fired the second shot, and it was then that Blanton saw him."

"William M. Combs, ex-Sheriff, and a man who is worth $50,000, saw Jett emerge from the side door in the same cautious manner. J. J. C. Back, a leading lawyer and attorney for the Hargises, saw Jett come out the side door. Floyd Hagins, a brother of Lee Hagins, Circuit Clerk, saw Jett come out. I believe that S.

S. Taulbee, County Clerk, saw him. These men are witnesses of irreproachable character, and are enough to convict him on. You may use this interview when it is released, or when you honestly think that the danger to me is passed."

The developments yesterday—the swearing out of a warrant for Jett; Jett's flight, and the attempt to assassinate Ewen—show that Ewen's danger can not now be increased by the publication of his statement.

Floyd Hagins left last Monday afternoon for the northeastern part of Tennessee, and has not been seen since. It is reported that he is willing to return to prosecute Jett. The other men who were named as witnesses could not be seen on account of their being out of town, but Mr. Ewen vouched that they will testify in substance to what was related by him. S. S. Taulbee says that he was standing in such a position that it is reasonable to believe that they saw and recognized the assassin, but it is believed that they will come forward when the time comes and tell all they know.

Ed Callahan, Sheriff of the county, says that he was looking into the corridor of the court house when the shot was fired, and saw the assassin, but on account of the dense smoke could not identify him. Dr. Kash and Capt. Ewen said that smokeless cartridges were used, and pointed out that even if smokeless cartridges had not been used the smoke from two cartridges would not make smoke so dense that it would completely envelop a man's form in a well-lighted corridor. Judge Hargis saw the shooting, but says that he was standing out of line with the assassin and did not see him."

BECKHAM

SENDS TERSE REPLY TO QUESTION OF NEW YORK PAPER REGARDING FEUDS.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 10.—Governor Beckham sent a terse reply to the request of a New York newspaper for an expression from him on the Breathitt county trouble and for his plan of punishing murderers and stamping out feuds in Kentucky. The telegram received by Governor Beckham was as follows:

"Gov. J. C. W. Beckham, Louisville, Ky.: Will you please wire at our expense 150 to 200 words regarding your plan for punishing feudist murderers and what, in your view, is the best method of destroying the feud practices?"

The reply sent by the Governor was:

"New York World, New York: Your telegram to me asking for a statement of my plan about stopping feudal troubles in Kentucky was received. When you succeed in evolving a real good plan for successfully stamping out sin and crime in New York please let me know what it is, and I will try it in Kentucky if it is necessary."

PACIFIED

NO FURTHER TROUBLE EXPECTED IN LAKE LANAO COUNTRY.

MANILA, P. I., May 10.—(Associated Press.)—Captain Pershing and his column returned to Camp Vicars, Mindao, from an expedition through the country east of Lake Lanao. The column experienced no opposition after fighting at Taraca. Prisoners captured at Taraca took the oath of allegiance to the United States and were released. Among Moros killed in the Taraca forts were nine Datots and one Sultan. The moral effect of this fight will be far-reaching, and it is doubtful whether there will be any further hostilities in the Lake Lanao country. Captain Pershing estimates the population of Taraca at 20,000, and in that district at 100,000. He says the population of the Lake Lanao district has been underestimated. Any itching of the skin is a temper tester.

Doan's Ointment is a never-failing cure. Is endorsed by Lexington citizens for all itching skin diseases. Mr. S. Bales, 353 North Upper street, says: "Doan's Ointment sold at McAdams & Morford's drug store disposed of some blotches on my skin. I think akin to eczema. The rash or whatever it was appeared every now and then on my face and hands, and although I tried several remedies to stop it. I met with little success until a friend advised me to use Doan's Ointment. It removed the itching, dried up the sore and healed it."

VISITORS

CLAIMED YESTERDAY'S GAME BY A SCORE OF 18 TO 9.

The Hamilton, O., team defeated the Lexington team yesterday by a score of 18 to 9, in one of the most loosely played games ever seen in this city. The pitching of Hammond was the redeeming feature of the play of the local team. The greater part of the nine hits secured off his delivery were due to the poor support given him by the individual members of the team. An error in the first inning cost the local team four scores. The work of the visiting team was good throughout. McThye did good work, but received better support than did his opponent. Following is the tabulated score:

CLAY

WILL MEET RICE, OF LOUISVILLE, IN BOUT HERE TONIGHT.

The fifteen-round go to a decision to be pulled off tonight in Ladies' Hall, on Church street, promises to be largely attended. The principals are Henry Rice, of Louisville, and Brutus Clay, of this city, both colored. There will be two preliminary bouts between local "pugs," the main fight being called about nine o'clock.

It will be remembered that Rice put Alonzo Jackson, of this city, out of the business in a fight on Water street not long ago. Clay then challenged the winner for a fifteen-round bout. The contest will be held under the auspices of the Hanover Club.

HAVE COME FROM STABLES AT ASHLAND—SKETCH OF MR. McDOWELL.

The Courier-Journal of Sunday says:

Thomas C. McDowell, college man and descendant of Henry Clay, the owner of Advantage, winner of yesterday's Nursery Stakes; Bourbon and Woodlake, is a gentleman in all the word implies, and at the same time a horseman whose rare judgment has made him one of the most prominent figures on the turf today. Beginning in a small way he has dealt only in high-class thoroughbreds, and preferring to own a few stake horses to a large number of inferior animals, has given to the turf some of the greatest horses of history.

Mr. McDowell has been actively engaged as a turfman for the past eleven years. In that time he has owned such horses as Batten, which he sold for $10,000 to Capt. S. S. Brown; His Excellency, for which Charles Head Smith gave $6,000; Maid Marian, with which he parted for $7,500; Alana-Dale, for which he refused $25,000; Star Bright, which John E. Madden thought enough of to buy for $6,000; David Garrick, which sold as a weanling for $4,000; Rush, which William C. Whitney took off his hands for $10,000; Spirituelle, which brought $6,000 for service as a brood mare after her racing days were over, and many others. He has trained winners of the Kentucky Derby, the Kentucky Oaks and many of the other great stakes of the country.

Mr. McDowell lives at Ashland, the home of his great grandfather, Henry Clay. He is a son of Major H. C. McDowell, who, at one time, was the law partner of Judge Bland Ballard. His mother is the daughter of Henry Clay, Jr., who fell at the battle of Buena Vista. He was educated at the University of Virginia, and during President Benjamin Harrison's Administration was made Collector of Internal Revenue at Nashville, Tenn.

Raised in the Blue Grass, young McDowell came, naturally by his love of the thoroughbred. His father owned a fine mare named Anark, and McDowell rode her frequently in gentlemen's steeplechase races of the Iroquois Hunt Club. He bred the mare and raised Dr. Johnson, Spirituelle and Monarca. While at Nashville he attended Gen. W. H. Jackson's sale at the Belle Meade Stud, and bid on two mares.

One of these he purchased. She was Studie McNairy, and by her side was running Maid Marian, one of the great mares of the turf. The other was Duchess, following which was Clifford. McDowell's last bid was $50 under the price for which she was knocked down. Studie McNairy has since produced among others Batten and Alana-Dale. Peg Woffington was bought by Mr. McDowell at the sale also. Her first four foals were Kitty Clive, Bracegirdle, Madrilene and David Garrick. Reine d'Or was sold to him at this sale, and she has produced Argentina II and Rush, which beat May Hempstead in the Kentucky Oaks.

Mr. McDowell is an ideal trainer, and seems to understand the horses under his care as well as if they could talk and tell him their condition. His most magnificent achievement was in preparing Alana-Dale for the Kentucky Derby. Possessed of marvelous speed the handsome son of Halma was troubled with bad legs. Mr. McDowell was unwilling to trust him with a stable boy on his back and broke him to harness. With the reins in his own hands he drove the colt in a light road wagon, and only a few days before the race put a boy up to ride him. The result was that Alana-Dale won. He broke down before the wire was reached and has never started since, but with almost any other trainer he would have been retired long before, a hopeless cripple.

FORTY COMPANIES IN WAYNE

ALMOST EVERY INDUSTRY CENTERS IN OIL—REVIEW OF THE WEEK.

SOMERSET, Ky., May 10.—(Special.)—Any one who has never been in an oil field that is fast undergoing development would in all probability stand in wonder if they should pay a visit to some portions of the Kentucky-Tennessee fields at the present time and witness the rush of work that has been and is now going on in this territory.

Take Wayne county, for instance. In this county alone there are now more than forty companies operating, and almost every man, wagon and horse available is employed by some of the various companies in their great rush of development in that section. The mills are kept busy cutting lumber for the erection of derricks, and the carpenters are busy as bees, while every wagon and team that can be secured is being used for hauling lumber of the derricks, and new machinery from the railroad station at Burnside. The hotels are crowded to their utmost capacity and there are new prospectors arriving in the fields from various parts of the country almost every day.

The long pipe line between Somerset and Parkersburg, W. Va., is now complete with the exception of some 35 miles, and the telegraph construction is completed clear through. The runs from the fields for the past week amounted to 5,300 barrels, of which the Cooper division produced 2,500. The total runs from these fields for the month of April was 19,285 barrels. For March the runs were 21,500 barrels. The Wayne fields produced 14,000 during the month of April, an increase over the previous month of 2,500 barrels, while the decrease of runs in the Barbourville fields for the same length of time were in excess of the gains made in the Wayne fields. The Cooper and Slickford fields show satisfactory gains over the previous months. Three new wells came in at the Cooper division, one of which was dry. Cooper, Blakeman & Co., No. 2, was dry; Riverton Co.'s, Miller Bros.' farm, is good for ten barrels, as is the J. I. Jackson No. 1, Coffey.

The Barbourville division produced four wells, three of which were dusters and the other a single barrel production. Seven new wells were brought in on the Wayne fields during the past week, ranging all the way from three to one hundred and forty barrels per day, the best producer being the Young No. 2, which in eleven feet of strong sand at a little more than 200 feet, is making 140 barrels per day. This field will be subjected to a severe test within the next few months, and those who are familiar with the field have no fears of the results being anything but satisfactory. The Standard Oil Company has found a market for the heavy oil of Knox county with the railroad people for lubricating purposes, and are shipping large quantities of it daily. They pay the producer 57 cents per barrel for this oil, but it is not known what price they realize from the railroad people for same.

The National Oil Reporter says it is in receipt of information to the effect that it is planned to force the price of petroleum up, and that the Standard Oil Company will likely keep the price advancing with such rapidity that it will reach the figure of $2.50 within the next 18 months. The consumer will, of course, bear the burden of this increase, but the producer will reap the benefits of the proposed advance. The general outlook in the oil fields continues to present a more rosy appearance day by day, and every week sees an increase in the activity of operators all over the fields, while new prospectors are being attracted to the territory by the scores.

The rapid improvement in the condition of the roads leading into these fields within the last ten days has greatly facilitated matters for the companies that are rushing new machinery into this territory, and the work is being pushed with greater energy than ever. The development for the next few months will be something remarkable, and will be productive of much good to the operators, as well as this section of the State in general.

HULL HOUSE

AN EXTENSION OF MISS ADDAMS' PERSONALITY—FIRST SOCIAL SETTLEMENT IN AMERICA.

Miss Addams did not formulate her plans clearly until she left Rockford College after her graduation in 1881. Then she determined to become a physician, so that she might find a natural place among the poor without any of the artificiality which characterizes most charitable work. She took a full year's medical course in Philadelphia, although she was at the time under the doctor's care for a spinal trouble, with which she has always been afflicted. At the end of the year she was compelled to rest, and went to Europe, where she alternated travel and study. New possibilities opened up to her in London when she saw the work of Toynbee Hall among the poor of that city. Why not make the same practical effort in the United States?

Up to that time her life was a preparation for the position which she holds today as the head of the first social settlement of America. The visitor who comes to Hull House in Chicago must be impressed, as Hall Caine was on his visit, when he pronounced it the most complete social settlement in the world; yet it is really but an extension of the personality of this woman, whose gray eyes look over the lives of the many people coming each day to the door of the home she has made among the poor.—Everybody's Magazine.

MISS LYDIA MARTIN DEAD

The funeral services of Miss Lydia P. Martin, aged twenty-seven, who died at the Good Samaritan Hospital Sunday morning, will take place at the home of her mother, Mrs. Nannie Martin, No. 138 Barr street, this afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. I. J. Spencer and Rev. Mark Collis officiating. The burial will take place in the Lexington Cemetery.

Miss Lydia Payne Martin was born in Scott county, near Payne's Depot, August 22, 1875. She came to Lexington in 1899 and entered the Protestant Infirmary, now known as the Good Samaritan Hospital to study to be a trained nurse, and filled her position at the above infirmary until June of last year, when her health failed. She gave up the work and made a trip to the mountains. She soon improved and returned to her home in Lexington, expecting to resume her duties as nurse, but never regained health sufficient to warrant her returning to her work, so remained at home under the care of her family. About twelve weeks ago she was taken to the Good Samaritan Hospital for treatment, where she died of consumption on Sunday morning.

Her mother, Mrs. Nannie Martin; four sister and two brothers survive. Her father, George F. Martin, died sixteen years ago.

HAYMAKERS WILLING TO PLAY LEXINGTON TEAM.

The Haymakers, of Sandersville, defeated a picked nine from Forest Hill, Yellmantown and Irishtown yesterday afternoon at Sandersville in a well played game by the score of 5 to 0. The battery for the Haymakers was Stewart and Fitzer, and for the picked team, Bevin and Armstrong. For the Haymakers Stewart pitched splendid ball. Bevin did good slab work, too, but his support was very poor. The Haymakers made a number of long hits. They say that no team is too good for them, and are willing to tackle the Lexington Sunday League team.

GROSS

FRAUDS IN LOUISVILLE

CHARGED BY THE ANTI-MACHINE CANDIDATES—CONVENTION TALKED OF.

Chenault May Contest—Few Returns Received Sunday Make No Change—Tom Bradley May Run For County Clerk.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 10.—(Special.)—Scattering returns from half a dozen counties received today do not change the result of Saturday's primary indicated in Sunday's Herald. In the three close races the several candidates all claim nomination. It will likely require the official count to settle the claims.

Chenault, Green, Hayes, Chinn, Mitchell and Julian went to Frankfort today. John R. Pfanz, Chenault's Louisville campaign manager, says gross frauds were practiced in favor of Hagar. He said Thomas D. Bradley, of Lexington, told him that Chenault would contest. The official tabulation in Louisville will begin Tuesday and candidates will be represented. County Clerk Simmons says the election was honest here. Bosworth left for Lexington, well satisfied at his splendid victory.

Thomas D. Bradley, of Lexington, told friends here today that he would be a candidate for County Clerk of Fayette at the next primary there.

FRAUDS ALLEGED.

FRANKFORT, Ky., May 10.—(Associated Press.)—So far the races for Auditor and Commissioner of Agriculture are the only ones in which there is a contest, in which there is still doubt as to the result of Saturday's primary. In the race for Clerk of the Court of Appeals, J. Morgan Chinn, the administration candidate is claiming election, while his opponent, R. L. Greene, claims a majority for himself of at least 2,000. Three or four candidates for Attorney General are claiming the nomination, Judge Ira Julian being the only candidate who concedes defeat.

The nomination for Superintendent of Public Instruction has two claimants, J. H. Fuqua and Ben Watt, each claiming a small majority. Fuqua appears to be in the lead in the vote thus far reported.

Not one of the anti-slave candidates will talk for publication, though it is not known that they charge gross frauds in Louisville and elsewhere in the State.

There is talk that a State Convention may now be ordered to ratify the work of the primary, and thereby remove all doubt as to the regularity of the ticket nominated, but nothing definite has been given out by the party authorities.

CLEVELAND ON FISHING JAUNT.

TOLEDO, O., May 10.—(Associated Press.)—Former President Grover Cleveland arrived today at Middle Bass Island for a week's fishing.

GRANTED WAGE INCREASE.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 10.—(Associated Press.)—As a result of the recent agitation, rock miners in the Wyoming region will receive a 10 per cent advance in wages, the same as decreed coal miners, dating from April 1st. Some of the men received their advance Saturday and the last of the others has been promised this week. The difficulty is not settled, however, as the rock men demand 10 per cent back pay of all wages since November 1st, and there is still the question whether they will receive this.

CROWDER

FOUND IN LAWRENCEBURG

HE HAD CUT OFF HIS MUSTACHE.
BURK'S CONDITION IS SERIOUS.

Henry Crowder, who stabbed James Burk Saturday night, was arrested in Lawrenceburg by J. R. Paxton, Sheriff of Anderson county, and Chief of Police McCarty, of Lawrenceburg, yesterday morning and brought back to this city and lodged in the county jail. His examining trial is set for this morning at 11 o'clock before Squire John B. Payne.

Crowder left Lexington yesterday morning on the Louisville Southern train. A message was received from Lawrenceburg shortly after his arrival, saying that he was in that city and asking if he was wanted here. Lieut. Overly immediately swore out a warrant before Squire Payne and read the warrant to the Sheriff of Anderson county over the wire.

The service will begin promptly at 8 o'clock with a shortened form of evening prayer and a brief address by the Dean.

Realizing that the capacity of the Cathedral will be taxed to the limit, the wares of the church have pursued the method used at weddings, when cards of admission must be used. The vestrymen will, as usual, act as ushers and receive these cards at the door of the church. All persons desiring these cards—which are merely issued to prevent overcrowding—will please apply to Mrs. T. D. Ballard, chairman, or any member of the Choral Club. These applications should be made at once, as only a thousand tickets will be issued. This will be a rare treat for the music lovers of Lexington, and, given under the auspices of the church, places it upon its proper plane as a praise service to the glory of God, and we hope that in due time the other great orations will be given so that Lexington may enjoy the privilege of other cities.

Account of Eye Witness.

Tom Williams, who, so far as is known, was the only disinterested witness to the stabbing, says he was standing outside of the door when Crowder was ejected from the saloon. When Burk went back into the saloon, Crowder said: "If he comes out here again I'll cut his head off." Williams saw no knife at that time, but recollected seeing Crowder take something from his inside coat pocket. Crowder continued to talk loudly and abuse Burk, who came out of the door and ordered him to leave. Instead of doing so, he began hitting Burk rapidly in the side. Burk slapped him in the face and walked back into the saloon. Williams did not realize that Burk had been cut until he saw Crowder step to the curb, fling the blood from his knife, wipe it on his pants leg and put it in his pocket.

After the cutting Crowder walked away. Williams went into the saloon and as he did so Burk looked down and saw the blood and for the first time learned that he had been cut. He immediately called a night hawk and was driven to the St. Joseph's Hospital.

Burk Dangerously Hurt.

At the first examination it was not thought that Burk was dangerously wounded. A further examination, however, revealed the true nature of the cuts, and an operation became necessary. It was found that the knife had penetrated the pit of the abdomen and entered the intestines. The operation lasted for more than an hour, during which time the injured man bled profusely. During yesterday reports from the Hospital stated that Burk was doing as well as could be expected. His condition is regarded serious, and no one is allowed to see him. His physicians hope that if no complications arise he may recover.

CREATION

WILL BE PRESENTED AT CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL ON MAY 22.

The sublime oratorio, "The Creation," will be given at Christ Church Cathedral on Friday, the 22nd of May, at 8 o'clock. Lexington is not a musical center, or perhaps it would be more eulhemistic to say that the musical talent of our city generally speaking is lying dormant. Realizing this, the Choral Club is making an earnest effort to stir up interest along this line, and to lead our people, by the matchless power of music, to appreciate the privileges that belong to us.

The chorus will number one hundred voices of local talent, with the exception of a trained quartette from Cincinnati, all under the able management of Prof. Ehrigott. This beautiful praise service will be one of the most delightful musical feasts Lexington has ever enjoyed, and will be held under the auspices of Christ Church Cathedral.

The service will begin promptly at 8 o'clock with a shortened form of evening prayer and a brief address by the Dean.

Realizing that the capacity of the Cathedral will be taxed to the limit, the wares of the church have pursued the method used at weddings, when cards of admission must be used. The vestrymen will, as usual, act as ushers and receive these cards at the door of the church. All persons desiring these cards—which are merely issued to prevent overcrowding—will please apply to Mrs. T. D. Ballard, chairman, or any member of the Choral Club. Of course, this service, given in the church, will not be marred by any audible demonstration of appreciation by the congregation.

GEARY

ELECTED CAPTAIN OF THE 1903
CHAMPIONS—THE TEAM'S SPLENDID RECORD.

The game Saturday is the last one that will be played by the State College team this year. Further games will be prevented by the encampment, which will begin May 21. Immediately following the game the team retired to its quarters in the gymnasium and unanimously elected Mr. Robert Geary, who has made an enviable record as pitcher this year, captain for next year. The members of the team recognizing Mr. Geary's fitness for the place, elected him unanimously, and there was no opposing candidate.

The retiring captain, W. H. Grady, received many compliments for the able way in which he had led the team to victory, and the members are more than pleased with their year's work. The students are already predicting a successful campaign for next year. They say that a good captain is half the battle, and they think they have the best in the State. Beside the captain the personnel of the coming team will be practically the same as that of this year, as six of the present team and three "subs" will return to college next year.

Of the seven games played with the college teams of Kentucky, the team has won without exception, giving to it the uncontested championship. Central University, Kentucky University, Georgetown College and Berea College have all been defeated in one game each. South Kentucky College was defeated in three consecutive games. Of the five games played, while on the southern trip, State College was victorious, giving the team a record of ten games won and two lost.

Mr. H. A. Bayless, of the Cincinnati Post, accompanied the Cincinnati team to Lexington Saturday, and remained over with friends.

"A few days later he walked into the store as straight as a string and handed me a dollar saying, 'give me another bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I want it in the house all the time for it cured me.' For sale by McADAMS & MORFORD.

Will on Thursday, the 14th of this month (May) remove his office from the McClelland Building to his residence, 343 South Upper street, between High and Maxwell, where he will be pleased to meet all his friends, as well as those who are interested in Osteopathy, and especially those who are suffering from disease of any kind (except contagious). If you want the benefit of the knowledge of the oldest and most experienced Osteopath in Lexington or Fayette county, call on Dr. Buckmaster. Hours, 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. New Phone 294, Old Phone 838.

Deadly cerebro spinal meningitis, popularly known as "spotted fever," and one of the hardest contagious diseases to combat, has broken out in the ranks of the 1,200 men abroad the receiving ships Minneapolis and Puritan at League Island Navy Yard. Already it has killed three young recruits, while five more are hovering between life and death. Grave fears prevail that others among the embryo blue jackets who ate, worked and slept with the stricken may fall into the fever's embrace. Today the work of raising thirty-five tents will be started, and as soon as the canvas shelters are in place the twelve hundred young tars will be put out to camp, giving them plenty of fresh air and more room for exercise, which, it is thought, will materially lessen the chance for a further incursion of the disease.

DISASTROUS FOREST FIRES.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., May 10.—(Associated Press.)—One of the fiercest and most damaging forest fires in the history of the Allegheny mountains has been raging since early this morning about Dunlo, a big coal and lumber town in this county. At 8:30 o'clock tonight much apprehension is felt for the safety of several camps of lumbermen who are in the district which has been swept by the flames. Some may have perished.

INTERFERENCE

OF THE GOVERNOR IN THE McCARTY CASE NOT EXPECTED IN FRANKFORT.

FRANKFORT, Ky., May 10.—When Governor Beckham returns to the capital tomorrow he will consider and dispose of the petition filed by Lexington parties for commutation of the death sentence of William McCarty, the wife murderer. It is not thought that the Governor will interfere to save McCarty. He has learned that there is nothing in the story that the condemned murderer is dying of consumption, but that, on the contrary, McCarty is in fairly good physical condition. The protest against any action is vigorous. McCarty is under sentence to be hanged on Friday, May 15 next.

BOWEN

REVIEWS NEGOTIATIONS

ALLIES COULD HAVE ENJOYED PREFERENTIAL TREATMENT FOR THE ASKING.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(Associated Press.)—How Great Britain, Germany and Italy for the asking could have secured from Venezuela preferential treatment in the settlement of their claims, had they asked it in time, and thereby been relieved of the necessity of appeal to The Hague, with consequent expense and delay, is told in the blue book which Herbert W. Bowen, who acted as Venezuela's plenipotentiary in the peace negotiations in Washington, has prepared, containing correspondence and cablegrams relating to the Venezuelan protocols.

It shows that President Castro conferred on Bowen two sets of powers, one authorizing him to conduct negotiations exclusively with representatives of the allied powers of Great Britain, Germany and Italy, and the other granting him full authority to effect a settlement with representatives of all nations having claims against Venezuela.

Bowen, on the day of his arrival here, called at the embassies of all the powers present. He presented first his full powers, though expecting that these would be objected to promptly, in which event he intended to fall back on the original powers granted him. Instead, the Italian and British ambassadors and German charge accepted without question Bowen's letters empowering him to negotiate with the creditor nations. In so doing they waived, at the outset the question of separate or preferential treatment for their governments and this point was not raised until the peace protocols were practically ready for signatures.

The blue book begins with President Castro's note December 9, 1902, expressing willingness to arbitrate the differences of the allied powers; the Caracas government requesting Bowen to represent Venezuela as arbitrator. Many cablegrams were exchanged between Venezuela and the allies, via Washington, before they would agree to President Castro's proposition for preliminary negotiations at Washington, looking to the raising of the blockade. The allies stood out for immediate reference to The Hague of the entire question, until Secretary Hay transmitted to them a cablegram from Bowen, at Caracas, pointing out the unreasonableness of "forcing" any nation to carry a controversy to The Hague, which is essentially a peace tribunal.

Bowen's Letter.

The book makes public for the first time the text of Bowen's note of February 20th to Sir Michael Herbert, British ambassador, which for the time threatened to break off negotiations. It is as follows:

"I have given due consideration to your government's proposition that two-thirds of the 30 per cent of customs receipts of LaGuaira and Puerto Cabello be given the allied powers and that the remaining third be paid the peace powers. That proposition I must decline. I cannot accept, even in principle, that preferential treatment can be rightly obtained by blockades and bombardments. It would be absolutely offensive to modern civilization to recognize the principle and to incorporate it into the law of nations, as it would have to be if the allied powers and peace powers should agree to it and acknowledge it. Furthermore, that proposition is objectionable because it would keep the allied powers allied for a period of more than six years. Venezuela can not, I am sure, be expected to encourage the maintenance of alliances against her. On this side of the water we want peace, not alliances.

"Now, as the question of preferential treatment is the only one on which we have not agreed, I hereby propose that we leave that question to The Hague. What we have already agreed upon we can hold and stand by. We need only add to it that we have decided to submit the question of preferential treatment to The Hague.

"If this proposition is accepted—and I do not see how it can be declined—there would be, of course, no reason to continue the blockade.

"This solution of this controversy is honorable to all parties, and I beg you to communicate it to your colleagues at your earliest convenience."

Retraction Demanded.

Sir Michael Herbert demanded retraction of the entire note, but Bowen refused to comply with the demand. The correspondence shows that thereupon negotiations on the part of the allies with Bowen were broken off and that President Roosevelt was invited to arbitrate the entire matter. This correspondence of the British government took exception to Bowen's statement that an Anglo-German alliance would be continued for six years were the allies to be given
